Retention Policy

Bishop Challoner School Retention Policy

Relevant Acts: General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) 2018
Data Protection Act 2018

This policy should be read in conjunction with:

Data Protection Policy
CCTV Policy
Information Security Policy
Privacy Notice

1. The purpose of the Retention Policy

The retention policy stipulates the length of time a record needs to be retained and the action which should be taken when it is of no further administrative use.

Members of staff are expected to manage their current record keeping systems using the retention schedule, and to take account of the different kinds of retention periods when creating new recording systems.

The retention schedule refers to all information, regardless of the media in which they are stored.

2. What to do with records once they have reached the end of their administrative life.

2a Destruction of records

Where records have been identified for destruction they should be disposed of in an appropriate way. All records containing personal information, or sensitive policy information should be shredded before disposal, or disposed using the secure bags of the approved external contractor providing confidential waste services for the school.

2b Transfer of records to the Archives

Where records have been identified as being worthy of permanent preservation, arrangements should be made to transfer the records to the Archives.

2c Transfer of information to other media

Where lengthy retention periods have been allocated to records, members of staff may wish to consider converting paper records to other media such as digital media. The lifespan of the media and the ability to migrate data where necessary should always be considered.

3. Document retention

The principles for length of document retention are based on relevance and purpose. The basic principles and the rationale behind them are communicated as part of the Privacy Notice.

3a IICSA, child protection and document retention

In the light of the Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse (IICSA), and various high-profile safeguarding cases, all independent schools have been advised to follow long-term, lifetime or even indefinite keeping of full records related to incident reporting. The school extends this rule to all personnel and pupil files on a 'safety first' basis.

Due to the current climate, the school will not embark on deleting historic staff and pupil files, or any material potentially relevant for future cases, even if it has been held for long periods already. Data protection issues should never put child safety at risk, nor take precedence over the general prevention and processing of safeguarding claims.

The threat of historic abuse claims is to be weighed against that of relatively minor data protection contraventions. If practical resources mean that it is not feasible to conduct a thorough review, the school will in the current climate err on the side of retention, rather than disposal, of staff and pupil files.

4 Records

A "record" means any document or item of data which contains evidence or information relating to the school, its staff or pupils. Some of this material, but not all, will contain personal data of individuals.

One consideration in whether it is necessary or desirable to keep records is possible future litigation. Therefore, records will not be disposed of until the limitation period for bringing a claim has passed. For most contracts that will mean 6 years from any breach, but the date to start counting from is the last day of the period under contract. Where there has been early termination, this will be the relevant date to apply (once the appeal process has been concluded): but for pupils, limitation periods will only apply from the age of 18 years.

In some cases the prompt for disposal may be the end of a calendar year, so a contingency is generally built in (e.g. 7 years where the statutory limitation is 6 years).

Limitation periods may be disapplied altogether by courts in the case of certain crimes or associated breaches of care (e.g. historic abuse). Recent 'historic' cases in the field of child protection make a cautious approach to record retention advisable and make it easier for a school to justify retention for long periods – even the lifetime of a pupil.

Appendix - Table of Suggested Retention Periods

The following table is a guide only. Time 'limits' are not intended to be prescriptive, nor intended as a substitute to exercising thought and judgement, or taking specific advice, depending on the circumstances.

FOOTNOTES:

1. General basis of suggestion:

Some of these periods will be mandatory legal requirements (e.g. under the Companies Act 2006 or the Charities Act 2011), but in the majority of cases these decisions are up to the institution concerned. The suggestions will therefore be based on practical considerations for retention such as limitation periods for legal claims, and guidance from Courts, weighed against whether there is a reasonable argument in respect of data protection.

2. The High Court has found that a retention period of 35 years was within the bracket of legitimate approaches. It also found that it would be disproportionate for most organisations to conduct regular reviews, but at the time of writing the ICO (Information Commissioner's Office) still expects to see a responsible assessment policy (e.g. every 6 years) in place.
3. Retention period for tax purposes should always be made by reference to specific legal or accountancy advice.
4. Be aware that latent injuries can take years to manifest, and the limitation period for claims reflects this: so keep a note of all procedures as they were at the time, and keep a record that they were followed. Also keep the relevant insurance documents.
